

Harald Katzmair

Harald Katzmair, PhD. is founder and director of FAS Research, a leading network and resilience-based strategy consulting firm. With his long-standing expertise in network analytics, AI-powered Data Sciences and a background in philosophy and game theory, he supports global corporations, philanthropic institutions and political institutions in complex, strategic challenges related to major transformations and disruptions in business, society and ecology.

Harald Katzmair studied sociology and philosophy at the University of Vienna and completed his doctoral studies in philosophy in 1996. Since 1992, Katzmair has taught at various universities in Vienna and around the world. Of particular note are his appearances as a guest lecturer at Harvard and Oxford. He also spent seven years in the USA with FAS Research, and still maintains lively contacts with partners on both the East and West Coasts.

His involvement in more than 2500 international projects, his regular appearances at conferences, meetings, and symposia, as well as his scientific activities -he published more than 50 research papers and a book entitled "The Formula of Power" (2011) - make Dr. Harald Katzmair a leading expert in the field of social network analysis and the analysis of power, relationship and communication networks.

Harald Katzmair is the father of two sons and has passionate interests in music, photography and ornithology.
